PUBLIC SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

No Case of Infantile Paralysis in Andover. Local Physicians Approve Opening. New Teachers For Domestic Science and at John Dove

After a delay of two weeks on account of the prevalence of infantile paralysis in Massachusetts, the local schools will open Monday morning for the fall term. Although there have been no cases reported here, the Board of Health considered it wiser to postpone the opening until cooler weather. Physicians will be in attendance at all the schools on the opening day.

Henry C. Sanborn, the new superintendent, has assumed his duties and all vacancies in the teaching force have been filled. Miss Whiting's resignation as domestic science supervisor, Miss Hoyt's and Miss Hobbs' in the John Dove, came late and gave very little time to the superintendent. Efficient substitutes, however, have been secured. Miss Portia Clough, who will teach in Miss Whiting's place, is a graduate of Framingham Normal and also of the Practical Arts High School of Boston. In the John Dove, Miss Olive D. Waterhouse of Wakefield, a graduate of Salem Normal, and Miss Elizabeth P. Otte of East Northfield, a graduate of Albany State Teachers College, have been secured for the other vacancies.

At the Punchard School there will be two sessions, made necessary on account

TYER LOST FINAL GAME

Industrial Baseball League Championship Captured by Kunhardt's Nine of Lawrence. Locals Play Poorest Game of Season. Large Crowd of Rooters Attended

Whether it was stage fright, indifference, or simply a case of being outplayed, the Tyer baseball team lost the championship of the Industrial League to the Kunhardt team last Saturday by the score of 10 to 2. The game was played on Riverside Park in Lawrence before a large crowd of spectators. The Tyer supporters occupied the third-base bleachers and were assisted in their rooting by the Andover Brass Band. Songs and cheers were given in abundance to help the team along, but all to no avail, for the locals did not seem to be in the game at all.

Those who had expected a close and interesting game were sadly disappointed for the Tyrians put up a pitiful exhibition. This was especially true in regard to their fielding and base-running. On several occasions costly errors were made in the field, many of the chances being easy for less experienced ball-players. On the bases the local boys showed poor judgment and carelessness. When it is considered that the hidden-ball trick was played on a runner on first, it can be readily seen how much life was put into the game.

Another feature which was quite prominent and which was annoying to

B.V.V.I.S. Lawn Party

Last Saturday afternoon and evening the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. N. H. Harwood was the scene of a very pretty lawn party held under the auspices of the B.V.V.I.S. The natural beauty of the grounds was enhanced by the use of Japanese lanterns and gaily decorated booths, the latter being used for the dispensing of refreshments. The afternoon was given over to games which were greatly enjoyed, especially by the children.

The feature of the evening was a river carnival participated in by ten beautifully decorated canoes, and dancing, music for which was furnished by a hurdy-gurdy. The judges of the floats had great difficulty in awarding the prizes as each contestant displayed such good taste in his decorations, but finally decided upon the following: First prize, Lola Riley, canoe back-rest; second, Roy Jarvis, canoe paddle; third, Harry Trow, 75 cents.

The children's ticket-selling contest was won by Roy Jarvis, but owing to the fact that he won last year it was thought best to award the prize to the next highest: First, Carrie Newcomb, 50 cents; second, Mildred Buck, 25 cents.

The several committees were as follows:

Candy Booth—Mrs. F. A. Juhlmann, Mrs. D. F. Burns, Miss Linda Clinton.
Fruit Punch Booth—Miss Gertrude Stark, Miss Ruth Parker, Miss Izetta Fillebrown, Miss Grace Riley.

Sandwich Booth—Harry Nason.
Ice Cream Booth—Ernest Windle.
Refreshment Tickets Booth—Mrs. Irving R. Shaw, Mrs. Christine Geagan, Mrs. Bessie Geagan.

Decorations—Louis Buck.
Games—Mrs. N. H. Harwood.
Tickets—D. H. Burns, John Hagerly.

Float—William D. McIntyre.
Judges of floats—Helen Riley, Isabel Miller, D. F. Burns.

The pronounced success of the affair was due not only to the efficient work of the committees and the hospitality of the host and hostess, but to the liberal patronage of the public.

Celebrated Ninety-third Birthday

Sleigh Rowland, oldest citizen of Andover, and holder of the Boston Post Cane, celebrated his ninety-third birthday, Sunday, September 10, at his home on River street, by entertaining some of his relatives and friends. He received post cards, flowers and other gifts. In the afternoon his grandson, Irving R. Shaw, took him and his sister, Mrs. Sarah Priest, who will very soon celebrate her eighty-seventh birthday, for an auto ride. Mr. Rowland and Mrs. Priest are the only two remaining of a large family of eleven children.

AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENTS

An automobile owned and driven by Henry Hinchliffe of 50 Bodwell street, Lawrence, collided with a buggy driven by Charles Torrey of Stevens street at the corner of Main and Harding streets on Wednesday evening at 6.45 o'clock. Mr. Torrey was driving from Stevens to Main street and had just reached the right-hand side of the street when the auto coming from the rear struck one of the wheels of his carriage. The wheel was broken off and the shaft was broken. No one was injured in the crash.

About nine o'clock on Wednesday evening a large auto truck owned by A. C. Hinman of North Reading caught fire and before the blaze was extinguished the front part of the machine was entirely consumed. The fire occurred on the North Reading highway below Carter's corner, and the chemical from that town was called. The truck was not loaded at the time.

An automobile owned by Mrs. F. L. Hall of Hampstead, N. H., and driven by N. A. Ferguson, struck and severely injured Alvin O. Waterman at the corner of Main street and Wildwood road on Thursday morning. Mr. Waterman was removed to his home in Scotland district and Dr. P. J. Look was called and attended his injuries.

Richard Sanders of 43 Chestnut street, Salem, appeared before Judge Stone this week to answer to a charge of striking a person and driving away without making himself known. He was fined $25 and paid. The case was one in which the defendant struck and knocked down Milo H. Gould in the latter's yard in Scotland district on Wednesday of last week.

Charles Olsen of Lexington was fined $25 by Judge Stone on last Friday evening for operating an automobile in a reckless manner on September 3.

Injured in Fall from Piazza

A four-year-old daughter of Joseph E. Sorrie, a painter living at 90 North Main street, was painfully injured on Thursday morning when she fell from a piazza on the second story of her home, to a concrete walk. The child had been playing with others and had climbed onto a chair near the piazza railing when she lost her balance and fell headlong over the railing, landing on her face.

The little girl was picked up by Chief Smith who happened to be passing, and carried into the house. Dr. Look was called and he found that she was suffering from a bad cut on her forehead and several other bruises.

Shortly before 3:30 p.m. yesterday Mrs. Mary Timony of this town, aged about 44 years, fainted and fell from an electric car going from Andover to Lawrence. She was taken to the Lawrence General Hospital, where it was found she was bruised about the head. The accident happened near Healey's Drug store, 168 South Broadway, Lawrence, and the woman was carried into the store, where she was first treated by Dr. Allen. She was taken in the police ambulance to the hospital. Her injury is not thought to be serious.

daughter, Miss Helena Wells, sang "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere" and "Although He Sleep 'Tis not Forever" in a very comforting manner. The deceased was born in Digby, Nova Scotia, October 24, 1837. He was among the first to enlist in the militia at the time of Fenian Raid. Besides his wife, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. John Melvin of Lawrence and Mrs. Everett Staples of Bradford, and four sons: R. M. Abbott and Freeman R. Abbott of Ballardvale, Nelson Abbott of Lawrence and Edward Abbott of Methuen; and eighteen grandchildren.

Women's Relief Corps Meets

Gen. William F. Bartlett Corps 127, held a regular meeting Tuesday evening with a large attendance. It was announced that Corps 129 of Danvers will entertain Essex County Association September 21, in Maple Street church. Members who attend are requested to take the 9:05 Salem car from Wilson's Corner.

After the meeting a reception was held in honor of Mrs. Olive Holt, a charter member and faithful attendant of the Corps, who celebrated her seventy-sixth birthday, the day before. She was presented with a piece of cut glass with many wishes for continued health and happiness. Selection on the graphophone were enjoyed and refreshments were served.

To Violin Students

Joseph Emile Daudelin, of the Boston Institute of Music will again this year, beginning September 16, devote one day each week to violin instruction in Andover, offering exceptional opportunities to those who are desirous of studying the violin. The instruction given will closely follow the system now in use at the famous Paris Conservatoire where Mr. Daudelin was a pupil. No doubt that residents of Andover will appreciate the many advantages of having lessons given in their home town, obviating as it does the inconvenience and loss of time attendant on a trip to Boston. For terms, and further information, call Saturdays at the Briggs-Allen School, Arco Building, or write to Mr. Joseph Emile Daudelin, Steinert Hall, Boston.

BIG GAME TOMORROW

Tyer Rubber Co. and Kunhardt's Meet at Riverside Saturday. Tyer Has Lost Only Two Games This Season

Tomorrow afternoon the Tyer Rubber baseball team will play one of the most important games of the season when the Kunhardt mill team will be its opponent at Riverside Park in Lawrence. Each team is the winner of its division championship and there is a great amount of interest being shown in the outcome of this contest.

The Tyer boys have made an enviable record in the season just closed, having won 14 of 16 games played, the first and last games having been lost. The opponents of the local boys were well organized and displayed considerable strength, but it must be said that Tyer's team was composed of the best players in town and with the capable work of Porter in the box, made a very creditable showing.

The team has been well backed with loyal fans and tomorrow will see one of the largest crowds on record in the Lawrence grounds.

The record of the local team for the past season is as follows:

May 6	Tyer 1	Pemberton 5
13	Tyer 12	Low Pacific 5
20	Tyer 12	Everett 4
27	Tyer 8	Plymouth 1
June 10	Tyer 6	Wood 0
17	Tyer 9	Uswoco 0
July 1	Tyer 5	Pemberton 2
8	Tyer 5	Low Pacific 4
15	Tyer 18	Everett 6
22	Tyer 9	Uswoco 3
29	Tyer 9	Washington 6
29	Tyer 8	Print Works 1
29	Tyer 5	Print Works 4
Aug. 19	Tyer 2	Haverhill 1
26	Tyer 2	Centipedes 1
Sept. 9	Tyer 4	Hurleys 7

115 Games won, 14. Lost 2.
*Exhibition Game.

Tyer Defeated

The game last Saturday, between the Hurleys of Lawrence and the Tyer rubber team although close and interesting, resulted in an exhibition of misplays in which both teams were equally guilty. The locals had six misplays against them while the visitors made five. The Lawrence boys hit Porter rather freely at times, making more than three times as many hits as the Tyer batters.

Garvin, the Lawrence pitcher was at his best and the three hits secured off him were widely scattered. Lynch, the visitor's catcher, was the best hitter of the day, securing three, two of them being for two bases.

Christ Church Notes

The Sunday School will be reopened, if all goes well, on Sunday, September 24. This later date was set in order to be in line with the public school opening.

OBITUARY

OLIVER W. VENNARD

Few strangers in this town, who have been present at a funeral in the South churchyard, or in Christ churchyard, can fail to have been struck by its quaint and stately formality, both going to and returning from the grave. And for thirty years they must have noticed, too, the man who led the procession, a man in plain clothes and of ponderous gait, but having a simple dignity and an evident kindness, which seemed to suit the quiet and the calm of the unusual ceremonial in our Andover churchyards. This man was Oliver Vennard, whose sudden death last Saturday has brought a feeling of personal loss to almost all the town.

Oliver Whitridge Vennard was not a native of Andover, though he seemed so much a part of it. He was born in Newcastle, N. H., December 15, 1842, the only child of John and Mary (Bateson) Vennard. His mother died while he was still small, but he found maternal care with a stepmother, Hannah (Bickford) Vennard. His father was a sea-captain, and the boy was early employed in the cook's galley and at the sails, going as far as the Banks and Labrador. It was a "pious boat," for one of his uncles, who sailed on the vessel too, was a lay-preacher, and Oliver read the Bible for the crew. When he was about eighteen, several of Newcastle's young men, of whom he was one, decided to leave the little village. They came to North Andover, where he found work in the Davis and Furber Shop. Three years later he found his wife in the same town, and he and Emily M. Murch (of Ellsworth, Me.) were married in Lawrence on September 2, 1863. It was war time, and Mr. Vennard was drafted for service. His lungs, however, had been injured in the machine shop, and he was rejected. For the next twelve or fifteen years he was seeking to rebuild his health. At first he returned to Newcastle, where he worked in the navy yard. At a later period he lived in Lamoine, Me., where he was the owner and captain of a coasting and fishing schooner. Between times he was living again in North Andover, from where he finally moved to Andover in 1880.

At first he worked for Edwin Barnard, a well-known house-painter of that time; and for ten years he and his wife lived in the double farmhouse halfway down Central street hill. In 1883 he became sexton and caretaker of the South church, the churchyard, and the nearby school-house. In 1893 he added to his work the care of Spring Grove cemetery. For some years he was the janitor of the Elm Club, and for a much larger number of years he was sexton of Christ church and caretaker of its yard, only giving up these offices when the steam-heating plant of the church was built.

Oliver Vennard was a thoroughly wholesome man. He met the human race under varied conditions; sometimes as good workmen or as poor workmen in his cemeteries; sometimes as bereaved people, dazed or petulant with grief; sometimes as zealous church workers, each of them thinking his or her own requirements in the church building all-important; sometimes as young men trying to get into the church towers on Fourth of July; sometimes as children rioting through church halls; sometimes as complaining worshippers, unaware that he had been up since three or four of a cold Sunday morning; sometimes as gay young persons, willing to stay in the church kitchen till midnight. And to all these people he was always himself, and was patient, faithful, understanding, considerate. He spoke moderately, he moved slowly, he looked almost imperturbable, save for a kind glint in his eyes; and in his company everyone found himself disposed to act more reasonably. Mr. Vennard lived to see many changes in the character of his tasks, but he kept pace with them. When he began, the cemeteries were mowed occasionally with a scythe, the churches were dimly lighted by kerosene, their furnishings were shabby. Year by year, the demands for neatness and brightness and beauty grew; and his labors grew, without a corresponding increase in pay for his toil. But his pride and his interest in the yards and the buildings grew too, and he did a great deal of work that has had no reward beyond itself, except an esteem for him so general, and an affection so warm that the modest man himself would have been astonished by them.

Of late years Mr. Vennard had several serious illnesses; but he had been pretty well this year, until on September 2 he was thrown from his wagon in Abbot street, and died instantly. Their only child died in infancy, but Mrs. Vennard's niece, Miss Adah F. Hall, has been to them as a daughter since she was a child. One of Mr. Vennard's half-sisters, Mrs. Hannah Vaughn of Portsmouth, is also living.

Mr. Vennard belonged to the Andover Club, Andover Lodge of Odd Fellows, and the South Church. He disliked ritual proceedings but he liked his fellow men. For many years his friendly face was well known in the Andover clubroom; but his best club was the sexton's room of the South Church, with William Langlands, or on the granite blocks before the church, or on Sunday nights with the same friend in the Christ church service.

Funeral services were held in the South Church on Tuesday afternoon. A large company had gathered there, and beautiful flowers had been sent. The services were conducted by Rev. Frank R. Shipman, former pastor of the South Church, Dr. Frederic Palmer, former rector of Christ Church, and Rev. E. Victor Bigelow. The two latter spoke truly and touchingly of Mr. Vennard. Hymns were sung by Mrs. Frederic Moore, Miss Mary S. Jackson, and Messrs. Arthur Bassett and Everett Collins. The bearers were Horace Ralton of Haverhill (a nephew), Llewellyn Pomeroy of town and Clinton Pomeroy of Swampscott (nephews by marriage), and Charles J. Francis, Jonathan Holt and George Millett. They carried his coffin, as he had carried many others, to the lower slopes of the South Churchyard.

Card of Thanks

We wish to thank friends and neighbors for their kind sympathy in our recent loss, and for the beautiful flowers which were sent us so abundantly.

ANDOVER CANOE CLUB

Deeply appreciates the fraternal spirit shown by the Lawrence Canoe Club, at the return regatta of last Saturday; and of the Ballardvale Village Improvement Society at its Float Night, last Saturday evening.

The Andover Canoe Club thoroughly enjoyed both occasions, and hopes to fraternize with both organizations during next season.

The A. C. C. members will meet at the Club House Tuesday evening to arrange for a dancing party in the Town Hall.

The A. C. C. Canoes are very busy now and the Ballard Line is twisting around the many bends.

the spirit of self-consciousness and conceit which was showed by certain of the players. It stuck out all over them and those who have been followers of baseball could easily see this fault.

The Tyer boys probably knew as much about baseball as their opponents. They were surely just as good players and they were probably just as anxious to win, but the quality of ball shown by the team Saturday can never win games from even weaker teams. They lacked fight, they showed no craftiness and were entirely outplayed in every point of the national game.

Donnelly, the Kunhardt boxman, pitched a fine game and his support was almost perfect. Every man on the team was called upon to make difficult plays and they responded finely. They also batted well, fourteen safe hits being accredited to them. In this department Ryan was the star of the day, getting four safe ones out of four times at bat. He also contributed one of the best plays of the day by stealing home in the third inning, when the local pitcher and catcher were so bewildered that their attempt to catch him at the plate was futile.

Tyer's runs came in the sixth and seventh innings. In the sixth, J. Lynch made a fine hit which scored M. Lynch, and Killackey got another run in the seventh when Cussen hit safely.

Seventh Annual State Convention

The three local organizations of parents and teachers, the Andover Mothers' Club, the Andover Mothers' Club and the Indian Ridge Mothers' Club will be interested in the program for the Seventh Annual State Convention of the Massachusetts Branch of the National Congress of Mother and Parent-Teacher Associations, which has just been issued. Its speakers are of national reputation, including the head of the National Educational Bureau, Dr. P. P. Claxton, a great favorite in Massachusetts in addition to being the highest representative of education in the public schools of the United States.

The convention will open Wednesday afternoon which will be essentially a session for the review of what has been accomplished by the State during this past year and a looking forward to the practical work to be accomplished during the year to come. On Wednesday evening a reception will be given the visiting delegates in the ballroom of the Nonotuck hotel, after which the delegates and friends will be welcomed by Hon. John J. White, the mayor of Holyoke, and Francis McSherry, the superintendent of schools, in response to whose endorsement of the cordial invitation of the Associations of Holyoke this city has been chosen for this year's convention. Mrs. E. W. Kroepel, President of the Central Council will give a welcome and James Van Sickle, the superintendent of the Springfield schools, will bring a greeting from the city. The response will be by the State President, Mrs. Milton P. Higgins.

The first address of the evening will be given by the National President, Mrs. Frederic Schoff, and will present the practical idea of the scope of the work of the Congress and its ideals.

The story of "A Pair of Queens" is woven around two men, one married and the other single, who are brothers-in-law. Business keeps them late at their office, and on their way home to the married man's house they stop in an all-night restaurant to get a bite to eat. While there a row starts at an adjoining table. The two business men make a hurried departure when a shot is fired, and in their anxiety to get away they inadvertently carry with them another man's overcoat, which it afterwards transpires contains a large sum of forged money, for which the police and the secret service men are searching. The two business men do not discover until the next morning that they have in their possession another's overcoat, and then they try to dispose of it. Their efforts to get rid of this coat—the forged money has already been stolen by a woman—are genuinely funny.

MRS. MILTON P. HIGGINS
President of National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teacher Associations, Massachusetts.

The next address will be an illustrated lecture by C. T. C. Whitcomb the director of the Massachusetts Educational Exhibit at the Panama-Pacific Exposition, and will be a surprise to the many who do not realize how great has been the advance in vocational education during the last few years.

On Thursday morning there will be greetings from the Presidents of the New England States and from co-operating associations. Reports from the state officers will give a clear, condensed idea of the progress of the work. In the afternoon of Thursday the national vice-president, Mrs. D. O. Mears, will tell of the importance of Child Welfare Day and its successful results. It is hoped that every local circle of Massachusetts will be represented at this meeting by a delegate who will give a report of the year's work. If impossible to send delegates, written reports will be welcomed.

On Thursday evening, Miss Mary J. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke College, will give an address on "The Value of the Constructive," and Dr. P. P. Claxton, the United States Commissioner of Education, will follow in a practical talk.

Friday morning will be devoted especially to the consideration of parents' obligations to their children in moral and religious training and will be led by Mrs. E. M. Barney, chairman of the Committee of Parents Associations in Churches. Friday afternoon there will be an opportunity given for pleasure trips to the various colleges, Holyoke, Smith and Amherst, or for a trip to Mt. Tom.

On Friday evening the session will be held in the ballroom of Hotel Nonotuck and Miss Lucy Wheelock of the Wheelock Kindergarten Training School of Boston, will give an address to be followed by Dr. Kate Waller Barrett, former president of the National Council of Women, who will speak on "Immigration and Our Duty to Those Who Come as Strangers to Our Shores." Prof. O. A. Morton, of the Massachusetts Agricultural College will tell "What Garden Work Is Doing for the Massachusetts Boys and Girls, and How the Parent-Teachers Association May Cooperate."

On Saturday morning, October 7, Mrs. Ellor Carlisle Ripley, Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Boston, will give an address on "The Value of the Parent-Teacher Association to the Individual." Miss Bertha McConkey, Assistant Superintendent of Schools in Springfield will speak on "Recreation in its Relation to Home and School," and Payson Smith, the Commissioner of Education in Massachusetts, who has recently been elected to fill the vacancy caused by Dr. David Snedden's resignation, will give the closing address.

Resolutions and closing exercises conclude the convention. The social features of luncheons interspersed with speaking, of music and of recreation and demonstration and the pleasure trips will be a unique feature of this seventh convention.

BOSTON THEATRES

SHUBERT

Everybody prophesied that "Katin-ka," the latest musical comedy, offered by Arthur Hammerstein, written by Otto Hauerbach, and Rudolf Friml, author and composer of "High Jinks" and "The Firefly," would be even more popular than its predecessors.

Time has proved that the prophets were not over-enthusiastic, but rather luke-warm in their praise, for the new musical offering not only lived up to the reputation of the former two but greatly eclipsed them, both in drawing power and the creation of enthusiasm in their audiences. The fifth and last week of the engagement at the Shubert Theatre, will begin next Monday, September 25, for which seats are now on sale.

The cast, headed by T. Roy Barnes, contains many of the principals of the New York cast, including Ada Meade, Audrey Maple, May Thompson, Bernard Gorcy, A. Robins, Jerry Childs, Albert Sackett and David Reese.

PLYMOUTH

"A Pair of Queens," a new three-act farce, which has gained success in other cities, produced at the Plymouth Theatre by H. H. Frazee, will start on its second successful week Monday, September 25. Kathleen Clifford and Maude Eburne head an excellent cast of farceurs. The other players are Frank McGinn, Hugh Cameron, Elise Scott, Regina Conelli, Harry Stubbs, Charles Butler and Charles H. Goodrich.

The story of "A Pair of Queens" is woven around two men, one married and the other single, who are brothers-in-law. Business keeps them late at their office, and on their way home to the married man's house they stop in an all-night restaurant to get a bite to eat. While there a row starts at an adjoining table. The two business men make a hurried departure when a shot is fired, and in their anxiety to get away they inadvertently carry with them another man's overcoat, which it afterwards transpires contains a large sum of forged money, for which the police and the secret service men are searching. The two business men do not discover until the next morning that they have in their possession another's overcoat, and then they try to dispose of it. Their efforts to get rid of this coat—the forged money has already been stolen by a woman—are genuinely funny.

WILBUR

It is the same old story at the Wilbur Theatre, the same capacity houses, the same enthusiastic audiences, the same catchy music and the same wholesome fun. And all because "Very Good Eddie" remains at that beautiful playhouse. And unless something unforeseen happens this charming musical comedy will be playing until snow flies at this same beautiful playhouse.

The chief members of the cast that made the piece such a go in New York where it is still going, and in a third theatre, is seen in the production at the Wilbur. Ernest Truex, the original Eddie Kettle in "Over Night" from which the present comedy is adapted, retains his role and makes even more of it than in the straight comedy. Alice Dovey, the little bride; Magna Paxton, the big bride; Denman Mailey the hotel clerk, all good entertainers, do their utmost to please, and succeed finely. Then there are Josephine Harriman and William Beardon who have some up-to-date society dances which they execute to the Queen's taste.

The seventh week of this delightful musical comedy begins Monday.

GLOBE

A steadily increasing throng is seen moving to and from Leow's Globe theatre, these days, where the famous pictureized official report of the Illinois Vice Commission is playing to packed houses from 10 a. m. to 10.30 p. m. daily. Under the title of "The Little Girl Next Door," the picture portrays everything that the Commission unearthed in the way of underworld life. This film gives motion pictures of the state Legislature in session, the Vice Commission holding its inquiry and the testimony of all its important witnesses. The unhappy fate of a young "girl next door" to Mayor Beall of Alton, Ill., stirred that good citizen to action that had a far-reaching effect. He first introduced a bill in the Illinois Legislature that later created the Vice Commission. Their searching inquiry disclosed shameful conditions in several Illinois cities, particularly Chicago. After they were through, Mayor Thompson of that city undertook to "clean up" the notorious Twenty-Second street district, and he was successful. Then the Legislature ordered that the investigation and this cleaning-up be pictured, and given country-wide circulation. The engagement in Boston enters its fourth week next Monday, September 25, with performances from 10 a. m. to 10.30 p. m.

MAJESTIC

After an unprecedented week's business, "Where Are My Children" has made eleventh-hour arrangements to continue to show at the Majestic one more week, and this in spite of the fact that this incomparable picture has already tarried here nearly three months. The thirteenth and positively last week will begin next Monday, September 25. The past week was one of the best in the long history of the engagement, and next week will undoubtedly equal, if not surpass it. Therefore, in response to urgent and widespread demands, this record-breaking feature film will continue for six days more, beginning with Monday's 2 p. m. performance, and followed by the customary three later showings at 3.30, 8 and 9.30 p. m. The intense interest among women in the subject of birth control now being discussed in the public press with unprecedented frankness, is undoubtedly one cause of the extraordinary popular interest in this picture. The whole some lessons learned from this film are self-administered, as no attempt at propaganda is undertaken by the producer. Tyronne Power, in the chief role of prosecuting attorney, is a tower of

PARK SQUARE

"Hit-the-Trail Holiday," George M. Cohan's greatest comedy, is now in the last weeks of its engagement at the Park Square Theatre. There are only a few more performances left for the Boston engagement and for this reason it would be wise to make immediate application for seats. There is no likelihood of the engagement being extended as the pre-arranged bookings make this impossible. The usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees are given.

The success of "Hit-the-Trail-Holiday" has been due to no sensational element. A very happy comedy, extremely gay in mood, but made gentle and beautiful by a rich vein of sentiment. This play has been acted with earnest regard for its quality.

Fred Nible heads the company, and his fine ability as an actor, his many conduct as the leader of the company and his sound intelligence, many times revealed in his appearance as a public speaker, as well as in his acting, have commended him to the favor of the playing public, and have won him the abundant favor he possesses. The supporting company is a group of notable players, who maintain an earnest interest in their employment and who do all in their power to make their audiences like the play. Each deserves a separate word of encouragement and praise, for the least of them, as well as the greatest, has aided materially in bringing to the comedy the rich reward of lasting success.

COPLEY

The ideal towards which the management of the Copley Theatre is looking is the establishment of a permanent repertory theatre in Boston, a theatre for all the people who love the drama.

To provide the best in drama, presented by the best players obtainable, and at the most reasonable of "popular" prices, this is the means whereby the management hopes to bring about that long-cherished dream of a theatre that shall be to Boston much the sort of institutional influence that the Comedie-Francaise is in Paris.

A glance at the list of the Henry Jewett Players, who will comprise this permanent repertory company, which will inaugurate a season of modern, classic, and romantic plays at the Copley Theatre on Monday evening, October 2, will suffice to show that the management of this delightfully intimate Back Bay playhouse has spared no effort in assembling a company of the first rank.

This company has been selected with careful discrimination, its members being players whose training and records in many prominent companies, both in this country and abroad, bespeak their competence.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

NORTH ANDOVER

John Carroll, student at Niagara University has resumed his studies.

Waverly Circle, M.M.D.A.O.F., will hold its regular session this evening.

Elwyn A. King of Marblehead street, Bowdoin College, 1917, has resumed his studies after the vacation at home.

Henry Forrest and Winifred Wilde, graduates at the Johnson High School this summer, will attend Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

The Misses Mary McCarthy and Theresa McGrail of this town have resumed their duties as teachers in the public schools in Derry, N. H.

Nathaniel Stevens of this town is president of the Woolen Goods Exchange of New York city, according to the list of officers recently announced.

Frederick Bressette and Joseph Mutch of Providence, R. I., spent Sunday at the residence of Captain and Mrs. Henry R. Smith, School street, making the trip by automobile.

The Women's Union of the Trinitarian Congregational Church held its first meeting for the season this afternoon at 3 o'clock. A social hour followed the business session.

The new building on Main street for the American Express Co. has been completed and the furniture and stock of the other office has been removed there. This building has been especially built to meet the increasing needs of the office.

The dancing class for children and young people directed by Miss Marion W. Crawford, will be opened in St. Paul's parish house if a sufficient number of applications is received. Applications may be filed with Mrs. Munro.

Deputy Fish and Game Warden Larkin of Andover, who has jurisdiction over this town, has received notice from the Fish and Game Commission to exercise special vigilance this year in apprehending deer and pheasant hunters for stalking game by the glare of automobile headlights. A law against this practice was enacted in the Legislature this year.

While trying to avoid running over some broken bottles on Berkeley street, Lawrence, Monday, Walter J. Currier, chauffeur for H. B. Call, collided with a milk auto truck of Walter Juenger of Foster street, North Andover, which was standing at Berkeley street and Keighley court. The forward part of the Juenger machine was slightly damaged.

Raymond J. Neil, president of the North Andover Dramatic Club, presided at Monday evening's meeting of the organization which took place in Brightwood Hall, routine business being acted upon. Following the business a pleasant clipping party was held. Miss Bessie M. Cooney, Miss Mabel Brightman and Donald Thomson efficiently directed the arrangements.

A genuine good time is assured all who attend the opening dance of the season at Grange Hall this evening. The management has had much experience conducting social affairs, and every effort will be made to provide for the pleasure and comfort of patrons of the event. Hommon's orchestra is to render the music for the occasion. After the dancing special electric cars will leave for the Parish and Lawrence.

The Essex County Agricultural school which opened for classes August 8, 12 and 18 respectively, has been closed until further notice. Development of infantile paralysis in Danvers convinced the trustees, of which County Commissioner James C. Poor is chairman, that as a precautionary measure, it was best to close the school. J. E. Bedell, 208 High street, is a student at the school, being a member of class 1917.

The funeral of Mrs. John Burke, who died Sunday morning at her home 9 School street, was held Tuesday morning from St. Michael's church. Rev. Fr. Carey celebrated a solemn high mass of requiem with Rev. Fr. Donovan as deacon, and Rev. Fr. Fogarty sub-deacon. The bearers were: Arthur Deshaire, Hugh Costello, James Daw, Joseph Buiney, John Walsh and James Donovan. Interment was in St. Mary's cemetery in the family lot.

William H. Hooper, who has recently given up his work as superintendent of the Davis & Furber foundry, to take a similar position in Lowell, was given a banquet Saturday night at Boehm's at Lawrence by the foremen and others of the shop. The mousers presented him with a gold watch while the employees of the shipping room gave him a gold gob. Salvatore Pugliss, a helper in the foundry gave him an elegant gold ring. Mr. and Mrs. Hooper were given a cuckoo clock by pattern workers and their friends.

The Epworth Leaguers had an enjoyable social Monday evening in the M. E. vestry. This capable social committee looked after the arrangements: Mrs. Roy R. Nelson, Freeman Davis, Fernley Wilcox. President Roy E. Nelson occupied the chair at the business session. One new member was elected. It was voted to have a corn roast on Saturday evening, September 30, the place to be announced later. The arrangements are to be in charge of Harold Sanborn, Edward Keisling and Freeman Davis.

METHUEN

Reginald Remick of Kittery, Me., is visiting here. He is a former resident.

Howard Jenkins of Central street has left to resume his studies at Maine University, Orono, Me.

William H. Sawyer of 13 Gage street who has been seriously ill, is somewhat improved at the family home.

William Waterworth of Lowell street, has returned from a ten days' trip to New York and Atlantic City, N. J.

Miss Ruth M. Mills of Plainfield, N. J., has been visiting at the home of friends in town for the past few days.

Mrs. James Robie of Walnut street is spending the next few weeks at the home of her son, Walter, in Wolfeboro, N. H.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred L. Carpenter of Lowell street and daughter, Miss Hazel, have gone to Wolcott, Vt., for a four weeks' vacation.

Duncan and Robert Oliphant, sons of Rev. C. H. Oliphant, pastor of the Congregational church, will enter Tilton academy, Tilton, N. H., this fall.

Dr. Rolf C. Norris, son of Mr. and Mrs. Norris of Grove street, who has been in France for several months with the Harvard unit, sailed for home this week.

The Hampshire Roads and Marsh Corner schools did not open Monday morning. Superintendent Haynes said that they will likely open next Monday if no further cases of infantile paralysis are discovered.

A. W. Pickering, Esq., of Charlestown gave an address before the members of the Men's Baraca Class of the Baptist Sunday school last Sunday, at noon. He was an interesting speaker and his topic was: "Plattsburg and Preparedness." Mr. Pickering told some interesting facts about the Plattsburg camp.

Arrangements are being completed by the members of the local Baptist Sunday school for the observance of the 100th anniversary of the founding of the Sunday school. Last year the church anniversary was observed. A meeting of the committee from the Sunday school was held last Sunday after the session of school.

Samuel Adams chapter, D. A. R., met Saturday afternoon with Mrs. Harry E. Moore on Stevens street. Many members attended. Mrs. Spooner, the regent, presided. The hostesses were Mrs. George Bannister. The next meeting will be held October 21, but the location was not decided upon.

Many members of the Mother's association of the Baptist church greeted Miss Pickering of Charlestown at a meeting Friday night. Miss Pickering addressed the gathering on "Women's Preparedness for the Battle of Life," and imparted many points. Mrs. T. P. Fisher, president of the association, presided. Miss Lela Wright contributed a piano solo. A dainty collation was served by Mrs. James H. Lyons and Mrs. Leroy Howard.

Work on the new school in the Elizabeth Bradley district is progressing rapidly. The excavating work is completed and it is expected that the building will be bricked in, in about another month. The building will be in readiness in about three or four months. It is located on a plot of land seized from the Phippen heirs off Merrimac street and makes a fine location with ample room for a playground for the school children.

While the state highway on Lowell street has been under construction, Highway Surveyor Robert W. Dow has had considerable trouble keeping the street in repair in the vicinity of Elmwood cemetery. There is a steep hill there and every time it rains the surface washes badly. Only temporary repairs are to be made, as another state highway which has already been started at the Draught end of this street will pass over this hill and at that time a system of drainage will have to be installed.

Forty-two names were added to the list of voters here at the closing session of the registrars of voters at town house, Saturday afternoon from 2 to 5 p.m.—There have been four sessions of the registrars in the past few weeks and 100 names have been added to the enrollment of eligible voters here. The total list of voters is about 2400 but a canvass of the town by those interested has shown that there are some 250 who have never enrolled. The registration of Saturday was the last session of the registrars previous to the presidential primaries, September 26.

At the summer school in the Pleasant Valley district conducted by the Samuel Adams Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, this past summer for a term of five weeks, there was an average attendance, daily, of forty pupils composed mostly of children of parents who speak a foreign language. The school was directed by Miss Mary Bailey, who has had charge of the school since it first opened a few years ago. Miss Bailey was assisted by Miss Calnan. During the school session the children took up basketry, raffia work, cane seating, weaving, singing, patriotic exercise etc.

LAWRENCE

Albert Mercier of Lowell street is spending two weeks in Canada.

Sergeant and Mrs. Walter G. Spranger of Haverhill street are in New York.

George B. Young, Dartmouth '15, of Cleveland, Ohio, is visiting with Donald C. Bennink.

John A. Hayes, Bay State Street Railway conductor, started Monday on a two weeks' trip to New York and Philadelphia.

Mrs. James W. Corkum and children, Elsie and Abbott, have returned to their home on East Oak street, after a month's stay at Pleasantville, Nova Scotia.

Harold Adams, son of F. E. Adams, superintendent of the L. Sprague Co. of Lowell street left Tuesday to accept a position with the Cadillac Motor Car Co., of Detroit, Mich.

Arthur Higham and family, who have been located in Oswego, N. Y., for the past year, have returned to this city and taken up their residence in the Gauthier House on Boxford street.

Harry Burke of Lowell street, who was injured in a motorcycle accident in Utica, N. Y., several weeks ago, has returned to this city. He will still be confined to his home for a few weeks by his injuries.

Mr. and Mrs. John Reifel of Avon street returned Monday from Scranton, Pa., where they visited their son Herbert, who has been ill. John Reifel is the favorably known salesman for M. J. Sullivan, Inc.

Members of Needham post, No. 34, G. A. R., of this city, participated in the annual parade of the Essex county G. A. R., association at Manchester, Saturday. Commander John Curran was in charge and fifty-two members of the post were in line.

The Sunday school teachers of Grace Episcopal church enjoyed an outing to Lynn and Nahant beach Saturday. The trip was made in an automobile truck. While in Lynn they were the guests of Rev. and Mrs. W. Appleton Lawrence who made the trip to the beach with them.

The Beach Soap Co. has just been awarded a contract by the purchasing department of the Panama Canal for a large quantity of laundry soap to be shipped to Colon. This company also has the Navy Department contract for a number of navy yards along the Atlantic coast.

E. McGrath & Son, will leave shortly for a vacation. He will make a tour to Portland, Me., Montreal, Quebec and St. Anne de Beaupre; also the Valcartier military camp, where thousands of Canadian soldiers are trained before being sent to the war front.

Dr. John J. Deacy and Dr. Peter A. McKallagat, health physicians, are attending several surgical clinics in the West. They first attended the Creel clinic at Cleveland, O., and will later go to Rochester, Minn., where they will be in attendance at the famous Mayo Brothers clinic. Chicago and Philadelphia will be visited before they return home.

Henry Graham of Prescott street, Lowell, a motorcycleist, fractured his ankle about 11:20 Saturday night when he ran into an automobile driven by George Larachelle of Milton street. Manuel Picano of Union street, Lowell, who was riding with Graham, was somewhat shaken up. The automobile was turning into Hampshire street when the motorcycle, coming up behind it, ran into it.

Henry Bernard of Winthrop avenue was pleasantly surprised last Saturday noon upon the completion of his duties at the plant of the American Textile Mending Company on Marston street, when he was made the recipient of a traveling bag and a fountain pen by the employees. He was very much overjoyed and thanked his donors heartily for the gifts. Mr. Bernard leaves shortly to resume his duties at Boston College.

At the Georgetown Catholic church Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock former Mayor and Director of Public Safety Cornelius F. Lynch was married to Miss Mary Donovan, a Boston school teacher. The ceremony was performed in the town where the bride made her home. As attendants at the ceremony Miss Katherine Donovan, sister of the bride, and John Lynch, brother of the groom, acted as bridesmaid and best man respectively.

Laborers of the Champion International Paper mill who had been on strike for a week, returned to work Monday with the assurance that they were to be given an eight-hour day as soon as arrangements could be made in the various departments of the plant. The strikers claim that it is a complete victory for them and that the employees of several other departments will be benefited. They will receive the same wages, they say as previously. The firemen and pulp mill employees have been working eight hours a day for some time.

The entire fire apparatus was called out, police and spectators from all over the city flocked to the scene and great excitement prevailed when crossed wires caused the sounding of a second alarm from Box 12, shortly after noon Tuesday. A large tar vessel which was afire was responsible for the first alarm, but the blaze was quickly extinguished. Some excited person sounded an alarm from another box shortly after the first was sounded, consequently the double alarm from Box 12 was recorded. The damage done to the tar and the side of the building at 268 Oak street, owned by Oliver Kennedy, was slight. The roof of the building was under repairs and in charge of Contractor Joseph Saliba.

Another Egg Laying Contest

The egg laying contest which has been conducted by the Essex County Agricultural School, and the Essex County Poultry Association, during the last nine months is about to close and another contest is about to start.

The following rules as arranged by those in charge of the arrangements will be interesting to those who are planning to enter their birds.

RULES AND REGULATIONS

1. This competition shall be known as the Second Annual Essex County Egg Laying contest, to be conducted jointly by the Essex County Poultry Association and the Essex County Agricultural School at Hathorne, Mass.

2. Records of the number of eggs produced, amount of food consumed, broody periods, etc., will be in charge of the poultry department of the Essex County Agricultural School.

3. This competition will begin Nov. 1, 1916 and terminate Oct. 31, 1917. Each entry shall consist of eleven pure bred pullets, but no males will be included. Ten birds shall constitute a competing pen, the pullet being held as a substitute in the event of loss of a layer by death or accident.

Contestants will be privileged to maintain throughout the year a full complement of ten birds.

Reserve birds will be allowed in case of infection, disease or death, permanent injury, due to accident or the development of vices such as egg eating, feather pulling, etc.

The management reserves the right to destroy any bird or birds, the presence of which, due to disease or other causes, would be detrimental to the success of the contest.

4. All birds must be shipped prepaid. Birds should be consigned so as to arrive not later than Tuesday night, October 31. The right is reserved to return to the owner fowls suffering from any contagious or infectious disease or deemed otherwise unsuitable for the purpose of the competition. A further right is reserved to refuse any and all entries. The management also reserves the right to cut or clip the feathers of any fowl that may be troublesome to yard.

5. An entry fee of ten dollars ($10.00) is required for each pen, fee to accompany entry blank. If any entry be deemed unsuitable and be recognized fee will be returned. All eggs produced will be sold by the management and the funds used for the purpose of defraying the expenses of this competition.

6. After fowls have been received at the Essex County Agricultural School and placed in the competing pen, every reasonable precaution will be taken for their protection and care, but neither the Agricultural School nor the Essex County Poultry Association will be held responsible for the death or loss of any fowl. No pen may be withdrawn during the progress of the contest.

7. All fowls entered in the contest must be of some recognized breed or variety. Bantams and ornamental fowls will be excluded. Only those fowls will be eligible that can produce eggs of marketable size, as all awards will be based on the production of marketable eggs. Exceedingly malformed eggs, soft shelled eggs, or eggs weighing less than 18 ounces to the dozen, will not be considered.

8. At the end of the competition, fowls will be returned to their respective owners at their expense, and a certified record of the individual egg production and amount of feed consumed by the pen will be furnished.

9. Suitable prizes will be awarded, concerning which see press notices later.

INFORMATION AND SUGGESTIONS

1. Entries will be confined to Essex County breeders. Entries to close October 15, 1916.

2. The management will accept a competing pen owned jointly by two or more breeders, provided, however, that the fowls be all of the same breed or variety.

3. Weekly egg bulletins will be sent to each contestant. Weekly reports will be made to the newspapers, poultry press and agricultural journals.

4. Contestants will be expected to cooperate with the school by furnishing data regarding early care and management of their competing pens, methods of hatching, systems of brooding, and other information which will help to make the contest of educational value. Blanks will be furnished for this purpose.

5. The management will supply leg bands for all entries and will send same to the owner in advance in order that his birds may be positively identified on and after arrival at the school.

6. All eggs will be sold at the best price obtainable and the proceeds will be devoted to the operating expenses of the competition. At the end of the contest a financial statement will be placed on file, for the examination of those who may be interested.

"I see they have just dug up a corner stone of a library in Greece on which was inscribed '4000 B. C.,'" remarked a student to a Scotchman. "What do you suppose it means?"

Can Women Work With Men?

If women prove difficult to work with it is rarely the women's fault. A woman invariably sets out to win the approbation of a man be he her boss, co-worker, or merely a friend.

"An office where there are girl workers always has a higher tone than the one where there are only males."

This is a statement that cannot be refuted. Some men may chafe because they are compelled to put some sort of a restraint upon themselves when the "gentler sex" are present, but really decent men welcome the necessity for such restraint, because they know it tends toward more work being done.

If an employer does not get value from a woman because he doesn't care to improve her, that is the man's fault. The woman who takes up a certain position prefers to be regarded merely as a worker, in office hours. She regards it as an insult when things are passed over merely because of her sex.

Girls start out into the world with the idea of "making good", and it is up to man to encourage or discourage their efforts. If he treats them as equals in the working world then he will find women quite easy to work with. If, on the other hand, a female worker is regarded as "only a woman," or just a "makeshift" till the men return, she will either "get her back up" and become troublesome or turn frivolous and treat business as a mere game.

"Practically all my workers are women now, and I must own they seem much more anxious to please me than men were. They will accept a reproof in a far better spirit than men." These were the words of a railway official who had been station master for a number of years, and he knew what he was speaking about.

Men car-drivers say they find the lady tram-conductors quite an improvement. Their minds are more centered on their work and they are always willing to accept any advice offered them by others who have been longer at the job.

In some offices the male workers sometimes complain that the women don't take their work seriously; while others are irritated because the women novices will keep coming to them to know this, that, or the other; but, since the majority of men find great pleasure in imparting knowledge to others, their complaint is often more in the nature of a boast than a grumble.

Girls are certainly more apt to break down in health than men—temporary breakdowns chiefly—and the fainting woman is a constant source of anxiety to the men who work with her. But as such frail creatures are now in the minority amongst the workers, they are hardly worth considering a nuisance.

Taking it all around, men and women work much better together than men do by themselves.—Pearson's.

Here entered the mayor. (Mayor Mitchell of New York, in the street railway strike deadlock.) He knew that it was his duty to prevent violence and disorder; but, being a man of vision far removed from the age of feudalism, he conceived his duty in larger terms. He believed the function of the chief magistrate of a great city to be not merely that of keeping peace on the city's streets, but that of working for peace and justice within an industry vital to the city's well being and much more than tinged with a public interest.

He put police upon the cars; but he asserted the indisputable right of the strikers peacefully to persuade the carmen still at work to quit, even though the persuasion were offered on the cars themselves under the very noses of the police officers. He did more. He quietly investigated the claim of the company officials that most of their men were loyal, and found the exact opposite to be the fact. A majority of the men were on strike and the proportion was increasing every moment. Armed with this vital piece of information, he used the great influence of his position together in agreement upon a plan of settlement. He succeeded.

The men obtained the substance of their demand: the right of unrestricted organization and of collective bargaining with their employers, and of being represented in such proceedings by its spokesmen or advisors they might select, without objection on the part of the company. The company was permitted to preserve the appearance of victory in its opposition to recognition of the union. But the victory is an empty one, for the employees are perfectly free to select as their representatives in any dispute with the company, officials of the national union or indeed any spokesman or advisors they may choose, no matter where they come from.

The specific grievances at issue—wages and working conditions—are to be the subject of immediate arbitration. An unusual and significant feature of the agreement is its final clause, which reads: "This agreement to be underwritten by Mayor Mitchell and by Oscar S. Straus, chairman of the Public Service Commission for the First District."

This is a recognition that such a controversy as this is no private matter between two groups of individuals—employers and workers—but a public matter in which the community is concerned as a community. It establishes the right of public officials to have a real and influential part in the determination of the relations of capital and labor in an industry dedicated to the public service.

The outcome of this strike has thus had three results. It has brought the street railway industry in New York city out of the darkness of feudalism into the penumbra of the light of industrial co-operation. It has demonstrated the value of another way of settling labor difficulties than private war. It has brought about the recognition of the principle that to a dispute between labor and capital in a public service industry there are not two parties but three, employers, workers, the community. It demonstrates further that the right of the community is not merely the passive one of not being deprived of the service it needs, but the active one of using its influence to prevent the exploitation and oppression of any class in the community by any other.—Independent

Massachusetts Field Artillery Making Most of It

At least one organization in Texas is not complaining of its lot, judging from a letter recently received from a member of the 1st Regiment of Field Artillery, Massachusetts National Guard. The going-home boy, lack of sleeping cots, heat and storms, have had no effect on the high spirits of this organization. He writes:

"Don't believe all you read in the reports from down here about complaints. There was naturally some confusion for awhile after we arrived, but we soon got regulated and everything works smoothly. As far as I know everybody in our regiment is satisfied. We are now having regular battery drills and expect soon to do regimental work, with the probabilities of large maneuvers by October. Our work is very interesting and we naturally get a lot of satisfaction out of our growing proficiency."

This is the regiment which was created only last year and consists of six batteries, one each from Boston, Worcester and Lawrence and three from Salem and the vicinity, the nucleus for which was the old 2d Corps Cadets of Salem. The field artillery is the highest branch in the service among the Massachusetts troops and its work is most varied, as it includes the service of the big field guns, with their various kinds of ammunition, and the use and care of horses, besides the regular work of any military organization.

In his letter this member of the regiment wrote of the need of recruits, the one thing that was worrying the officers. He believes many young men would get much benefit from joining them if these benefits could be made known to the eyes of so many in seeing so much of the country, both on the trip down and on the border, an education in itself. There is a training and discipline, too, in this service of lasting value to a young man's future.

For the limited period during which the troops will be at the border young men who have only recently gone to work or who are not at present working might well gain much by joining this regiment.

The friends of this regiment at home have taken a great deal of interest in its welfare, and have kept in constant touch with it since its departure. A committee on supplies and communication was formed among them, and has offices in Boston at 687 Boylston street, with Col. J. C. R. Peabody as secretary. It maintains communication with all the officers and men of the regiment, and aids as it can to keep efficiency of the regiment up to top notch by sending articles useful and suitable to the men, recruiting, etc.

School Building Architecture

The communication in last week's Townsman relative to the style of architecture to be used for the new high school building has led several people to inquire of the editor whether it wouldn't be possible to have a little more ornamentation, and one of these persons has suggested that it would be wise to spend a little extra money, if necessary, to this end.

The writer is one of those who takes the directly opposite direction from Mr. Roberts in his criticism of this school building. He believes in its plainness, and in fact would be inclined to go rather farther in doing away with the greater part of the ornamentation that is used on most public buildings. One need not go outside of Andover to find examples of the simple type of architecture wearing well and increasingly satisfactory to the people who must live with them from day to day. One need not go out of Andover to find several horrible examples of over-ornamentation and bad architecture becoming more and more unbearable with each succeeding year.

The first consideration to be given to the new high school building is entirely from the utilitarian standpoint. Of course this is not the only condition to have in mind in either the design or approval of a building that is so important as this is to a community the size of Andover, but unless there is something that is strikingly offensive certainly we would better not waste any money in this way. The proposed high school building is well balanced, with simple lines that will lend themselves to the surroundings in a way to make the writer at least believe it will be a pretty satisfactory building from the artistic standpoint for Andover to have, and while there are some things about the working out of this problem that haven't appealed to the best judgment of the Townsman editor, the question of the ornamentation or the design of the building cannot be added to that list.

The Primary Next Tuesday

Andover appears to have very little reason to get excited over the primary which comes next Tuesday except that excitement associated with the election.

There seems to be little doing in Andover except in the interest of Mr. Gleason, the present incumbent, who is a candidate for renomination in the new district which includes Andover, North Andover, and Middleton. It is probable there will be a little work done for each of the two candidates who aspire for the Democratic nomination for Governor and some of the other contests may arouse some interest but little is heard of any of these contests.

The legislative fight according to all accounts has become rather warm, with Mr. Gleason strong in Andover, Mr. Holt in North Andover, and with the smaller end of the district at Middleton perhaps holding the balance of power. The people of Andover have gotten a new view of Mr. Gleason through his first year in the Legislature. Many Republicans opposed him at the last election and some others voted for him under protest because they didn't have confidence that he would make good as a representative of Andover. The past twelve months have demonstrated that his pledges to his friends and his assurances to all who were in doubt have been abundantly filled, and, for one, the writer wants to acknowledge a very marked change of heart regarding the service which Mr. Gleason is capable of doing for the community. He isn't an orator (and perhaps this is to his credit) and he doesn't claim a large experience on the big public questions, but he has that wonderful quality of industry, coupled with the desire to learn, which are combined with other qualities to fit him for much better service next year than he was even able to give his first year. There isn't a single reason why Andover Republicans should not give him hearty support for renomination, and why the entire district should not be behind him for re-election.

Another man, about whom little is known, but who has been a powerful factor in making better conditions for the Republican party in this section of the state, is a candidate for re-election to the State Committee, in the person of Fred W. Gay of Methuen. He isn't after the job because he wants it, and never has been; but he has given of his time, his money, and a big interest, to the Republican party because he is interested in it, and he has been able to give more generously not because he has leisure but because he is one of the busy men of Methuen who have learned that only from busy men can you get a full measure of service.

A Great People

We are pretty well stuck on ourselves here in the United States and those of us who are loyal to the country feel that we have a right to be; but, after all, it does broaden one out a bit to get away from home and see what some of the other people are doing, and so the writer has considerable satisfaction over the trip of last week to Montreal in which he discovered the "cousins" of America, building, broadening, and growing in a wonderful way across the imaginary line that separates the two halves of this particular continent. Of course we have always known that they have a wonderful country, but there are but few of us who realize the tremendous growth that is taking place in that particular community making up greater Montreal. Today nearly 700,000 people are numbered as its citizens, and the enormous business growth has kept pace with the growth of the population both along commercial lines and along industrial and shipping lines.

The writer's peculiar interest led him to see very closely the form of development which has led the entire country to become interested in making Montreal one of the great seaports in the world, leading her on until today she is for about six months in the year the greatest grain-shipping centre of the entire world. The development has been a national one, but the responsibility for it has been centered in the officials located right in the city of Montreal who have made a wonderful success of port, shipping, and terminal facilities involved in all this great development.

At this particular time to see a people giving as generously of themselves as the Canadian people are, without any possible commensurate return to hope for, is an exhibition of courage, loyalty and whole-hearted generosity that is splendid to behold. Already from Canada have gone three hundred and fifty thousand men for overseas military service. Pretty intensive work is being done at the present time to increase this number to a half a million with every chance that success will come, and if it does, what a wonderful inspiration will be given to those of us who have been afraid that national honor no longer held many charms, in this great army of only about seven million people, with no national policy involved, with simply a desire to record a renewed loyalty to a mother country, loyally giving themselves to the service of that mother country.

It was worth going to the country across the line to get into the atmosphere created by this enthusiastic response to national need, if there had been no other thing gained from the trip.

A further postponement of the opening of the public schools in several of the cities and towns of the state has led to some inquiry about the wisdom of opening them in Andover next Monday. One ought not to lose sight of the fact that the conditions in Andover are already excellent, and that many of the best health authorities believe that children may be much better off so far as being liable to an attack of infantile paralysis is concerned, if they have the constant medical attendance that comes with the school opening than they would be if they were scattered without such medical oversight. We certainly trust that this will work out so in Andover, for with the clean record up to date, it would be serious indeed if cases should come after the children had been brought together in regular public school sessions. We are inclined to believe that health conditions in Andover may be pretty cordially approved in the light of the freedom which we have from most of the diseases making havoc in so many cities and towns.

Governor McCall has made an excellent appointment in his selection of a head of the Prison Department of Massachusetts in the person of Colonel Cyrus B. Adams of the Concord Reformatory. Colonel Adams hasn't been long enough at Concord to gain any particular local reputation, but he has had a training in the particular work to which he has now been called fitting him admirably for the exacting duties of the office. We are of those who regret exceedingly the passing of Commissioner Randall from active participation in Massachusetts prison affairs. He lacked some of the necessary qualities to make a great official such as Massachusetts needs in this new office, but for those he lacked he had many others to make up for the deficiency and it is doubtful if any man can be brought into the work of prison reform in Massachusetts along live lines who would contribute more practical ideas that would make for practical results than Commissioner Randall could.

Pleasantly Surprised

Miss Ruth K. Whiting, was given a pleasant surprise at the home of Miss Margaret Hinchcliff on Highland road, last Saturday evening, in the form of a farewell party. A number of her domestic science pupils were present. Early in the evening Miss Eleanor Dugan presented Miss Whiting with a handsome brooch. Games were played and refreshments were served. Among those present were: Miss Hinchcliff, Miss Fenwick, Miss Gregory, Misses Margaret Hinchcliff, Alice Howell, Fanny Lewis, Jenny Boutwell, Frances Otis, Edith Henderson, Florence Wade and Eleanor Dugan.

PRIMARIES TUESDAY

Polls Will Be Open From 8 A.M. to 8 P.M. Contest for Representative Favors Nesbit G. Gleason

The State primaries will be held on next Tuesday all over Massachusetts, and it is expected that there will be a big vote cast owing to the contests for the various offices in both the Republican and Democratic parties.

Locally the contest will be for the Republican nomination for Representative in the district now made up of Andover, North Andover and Middleton. The contestants are Nesbit G. Gleason of this town and Peter Holt of North Andover. Both men have served one year in the Legislature and they are making strenuous efforts to secure the nomination, which, in all probability, will mean election.

The polls will be open at 12 o'clock noon and will be closed at 8 p.m. Owing to the fact that by law the counting cannot commence until after the polls are closed, the result will probably not be declared until well into Wednesday morning.

The election officers who will have charge at the polls are as follows: Warden, William B. Cheever; deputy warden, Ira B. Hill; clerk, Daniel A. Collins; deputy clerk, Mark M. Keane; inspectors, Charles A. Hill, William J. Doherty; deputy inspectors, Timothy J. Mahoney, J. Frank Morse; counters, Patrick J. Dwane, Michael Welch, David C. Leslie, James R. Mosher; tellers, George L. Averill, Jeremiah O'Connor.

Comings and Goings

The long-distance vacationists are returning. Miss Delight Hall has arrived home from her summer sojourn on the shore of Lake Michigan, and Mr. and Mrs. Melledge from theirs on the shore of Foster's Pond.

Mrs. Fannie Hammond Burr, the widow of Rev. Austin H. Burr, who was a Seminary graduate in the class of 1875 and the pastor of the West Parish from 1880 to 1885, is a guest of Mrs. W. S. Jenkins and others in her early home, town. After Mr. Burr's death in 1891, she removed to his former home at Oberlin, where their six children were educated. Two of the sons, whom she has recently been visiting in Pasadena, Cal., have significant Andover names—Wesley Churchill and Merrill Jackson! Her eldest son is a missionary of the American Board in India.

Other visitors of the past week were Prof. and Mrs. George J. Cummings of Howard University, Washington, at the Locke street home of the new superintendent of schools, Henry C. Sanborn. Mrs. Sanborn being their daughter. Mrs. Sanborn was a Wellesley classmate on Bartlett street, and Mrs. Cummings found a sixty-year-old classmate on Morton street, so there were some pleasant reminiscences!

Leavetaking Made Pleasant

You will recall the note of the gifts and the return of three Scotch ladies to Scotland last week. On Friday night, Ian McDougall must have heard the pipes as the crowd at the station to get them onto the New York Express kept it up, while waiting for the train fifteen minutes late. Scotch songs and general hilarity made a cheerful leavetaking for those about to take the treacherous Atlantic road. Good Templars, mill-mates, neighbors, something called the "Auxiliary", all contributed to show how these Scots cling together in the stranger's land.

"Singular thing, isn't it?"

"What?"

"That people who are so different from us seem to be satisfied with themselves."

GIRLS' CHOIR ENTERTAINED

Monday night the girls' auxiliary choir of Christ Church was tendered a complimentary banquet in the parish house in recognition of its services during the summer. There were 21 present and an excellent supper was served by Caterer T. E. Rhodes, the menu including chicken patties, ham, potatoes, peas, rolls, cookies, ice cream and coffee. The tables were very attractively decorated with asters and phlox. Rev. C. W. Henry, rector of the church, C. J. R. Humphreys, senior warden, and Addison B. LeBoutillier, junior warden, were especially invited guests.

A pleasing function was the presentation of a beautiful prayer book to Miss Ruth K. Whiting, who has rendered valuable assistance to the choir and also in other branches of church work. The presentation was made by Mr. Henry in behalf of her associates. Miss Whiting recently resigned her position as a teacher in Pynchard school.

The time was pleasantly spent in playing games and a peanut hunt was won by Miss Mary Taylor. Violin selections were also enjoyed.

Those present were Mrs. Albert Zahn, Mrs. Edith Taylor, Misses Eleanor Emmett, Grace French, Edna Perkins, Jessie Smith, Ann Smith, Caroline Berry, Violet Cole, Eleanor Schofield, Florence Taylor, Mary Taylor, Lucille Lloyd, Nan Sellars, Dorothy Lovell, Ruth K. Whiting, Isabella Killackey, Edith P. Sellars. The three last named had charge of the successful affair.

TIMELY SUGGESTION

The Board of Public Works at a meeting on September 15 voted to co-operate with the residents on Central street to improve the appearance of that thoroughfare by grassing over the sides of the road between the tarvia and the sidewalk. The following letter is sent to the Townsman by the Secretary of the Board:

As suggested by certain residents of Central street, the Board of Public Works, at a recent meeting, considered the advisability of grassing over the sides of the road between the tarvia and the sidewalks.

Unfortunately the Board has no funds available for this purpose, but will gladly co-operate with any of the residents of Central street who care to grass over, at their own expense, plots of land extending along the road side in front of their premises.

The street as now laid out gives a splendid opportunity to make this one of the most attractive streets leading from the centre of the town, and it is hoped that pride for a beautiful Andover unsurpassed by any other town in this Commonwealth, may bestir many, if not all of our Central street residents to interest themselves in this project.

Very truly yours,

C. B. BALDWIN

Secretary

Of Old Andover Stock

Saturday night's Transcript reports the engagement of Major Irving T. Cutter of the 8th Massachusetts Regiment of militia in camp at El Paso, whose home is at Winchester. Graduate of Harvard 1903 he has been a physician for ten years, and sixteen years in militia service. He is to marry Miss Zulu Robinson, daughter of A. Milton Robinson of El Paso, a cattle dealer. She is a college girl, has a musical education and is prominent in regimental concerts. The relatives of Major Cutter here will recall him as grandson of Moses Dow and Elizabeth Houghton. The old schoolmates will remember him as a somewhat timid boy whose father was Deacon Cutter of the South Church and who lived next to Mrs. Sereno Abbott's on Main street.

Interesting Entertainment at North Andover

The entertainment arranged for Friday evening, September 29, at 8 o'clock in the North Parish Hall, will be an event of great interest to the local public. The following program will be carried out:

HELD FISHING PARTIES

Swampscott Skipper Breaks Faith with Local Fishermen and Latter Are Stranded. Party from West Parish

It was a sadly disappointed party of fishermen that made the trip to Swampscott early on Saturday morning for the purpose of enjoying the day on the "Letter D" to find that Captain Healy had "put one over on them" by favoring a crowd from Worcester and giving them the use of the boat.

From the report made by the organizers of the local party it is quite probable that a civil suit will be brought against Captain Healy as the men are indignant over their treatment. Howard Baker, the leader of the party, claims that the first violation of the contract agreed upon between himself and Captain Healy was when the latter erased Mr. Baker's name from the diary in which dates and boat engagements were kept. In examining the book, Mr. Baker found that a poor job had been done in destroying the claim of the Andover men, for although the name was not intelligible, the word Andover could be plainly seen beneath Worcester.

The local boys pressed their claim on the Captain and had almost succeeded when the Worcester men made strenuous objections and the Captain finally announced that to make things square, he would take neither party out. This appeared fair enough and the local men were satisfied.

Now comes the part that made the Andover crowd "sore". The Captain had given the Worcester crowd the tip to walk down the shore about half a mile and he would see that they got aboard the vessel. Sure enough, this is what happened, for some of the local men caught on to the scheme and discovered the trick.

Not to be outdone, the Andover men hired a motor-boat and some dories and proceeded to the fishing grounds. The catch was only fair; a few of the men caught good ones, however.

A number of men from the Parish enjoyed a fishing trip Wednesday. They left the Parish in automobiles and motorcycles and rode to Swampscott and took a boat for the fishing grounds. The five-dollar reward for catching the first fish was won by John Maddox of the River road. The largest fish was caught by Will Webb who won two dollars and a half. Those who went from West Andover were Munroe Fuller, Will Webb, Winthrop Boutwell, Arthur, Shaw, John Maddox, Warren Pike, George Averill, J. M. Rose, William B. Corliss, George Carter, Edward and Fred Hardy, Mr. Peterson and Phillip Peterson, Frank Bailey, and Henry Nason from North Andover.

Election of Officers

At a recent meeting of the Knights Club held in their club rooms on Main street the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Grand Knight, Bernard L. McDonald; Deputy Grand Knight, John L. Hartigan; chancellor, Francis J. Mooney; warden, Patrick Colbath; financial secretary, Timothy J. Mahoney; recording secretary, James Welsh; treasurer, Alexander Dudley; advocate Joseph Daley; inside guard, Frederic J. Kuehner; outside guard, M. Joseph Daly; trustee for three years, John J. Kelley.

The local council will march in the annual Columbus Day parade to be held at Lowell on the above-named day, and 100 members are planning to attend.

The following committee consisting of Charles Bowman, Jr., John Alexander, John J. Hartigan, M. Joseph Daly, John Shattuck, David Murphy and Joseph Daley, will conduct a series of entertainments including Seamus McManus and the Cecilia Quartet of Boston and other attractions that will be well worth seeing.

New Plumbing Firm Organized

The firm of William H. Welch Co. opened for business this week in the store on Post Office avenue, formerly occupied by John Stewart. The firm consists of Joseph A. Rand as President and Treasurer and William H. Welch as manager. The latter was for many years a leading business man in Andover, having conducted a plumbing establishment on Elm street, and for the past three years he has been located in Boston where he has established a growing business. Mr. Rand is well known here, coming from North Andover. He married Miss Nellie Flint, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Flint, and now resides on Elm street.

The new firm wish to announce that they will be pleased to meet their friends and acquaintances in their new stand.

Grange News

The next meeting of Andover Grange will be held in the Grange hall next Tuesday evening. It will be observed as State Officer's night and the speaker will be Mrs. George Ladd, Worthy State Lecturer, of Sturbridge. As Mrs. Ladd is well-known to some, they will require no invitation, but for the benefit of those grangers who have never heard Mrs. Ladd we will urge them to be present. She has an unusually pleasant personality, and her remarks will be well worth listening to. Light lunch will be served by Mr. and Mrs. Everett Lundgren, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Dane, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Emerson.

Twelve of the members from the Ladies' Club of the Grange met with Mrs. Ira B. Hill of Lupine road, Wednesday and held a sewing meeting, preparing for the "Grange Fair" which will be held this fall.

AUTO AND CAR COLLIDE

One of the worst automobile accidents of a series which Andover has passed through during the last few weeks occurred on the Reading road about a mile below Baker's turnout last Saturday night in which two men, John F. Riley and William Boudro of 11 Fennos street, Cambridge, were so seriously injured that both had to be taken to the Lawrence General Hospital for treatment.

The accident was the result of a rear-end collision between an auto-truck on which the injured men were riding and an electric car. The latter was in charge of Conductor Thomas Leonard and Motorman Daniel McDuffy. The accident occurred about eight o'clock on one of the darkest spots, between Andover Hill and Reading, nearly opposite the entrance to Martin's pond.

The auto truck, owned by the Hughes company, Cambridge, loaded with pottery, was headed towards Boston, being driven by Boudro. In turning to avoid running into a group of horses being led over the road, Boudro drove the auto truck close to the car tracks and an electric car crashed into the rear end of the truck. The driver lost control of the wheel for a moment and the truck shot across the road, over a fifteen-foot embankment. The truck landed on the front end, pinning Riley underneath. Boudro was soon extricated from the wreckage, but it was over an hour before Riley was released.

Dr. E. D. Lane was summoned and he reached the scene just after Boudro had been taken out. He ordered the injured man removed to the Lawrence General Hospital at once, an automobile being requisitioned for the purpose. Dr. Lane rendered medical aid to Riley who was also sent to the Lawrence General Hospital in an automobile as soon as he had been removed from beneath the truck.

Officer James Napier of the Andover police department and the Andover auto-chemical engine went to the scene of the accident and assisted in releasing Riley. All efforts to haul the truck out proved unavailing and it was necessary to dig around the man's prostrate form until his leg could be released.

At the hospital it was found that Riley's left leg was broken and that Boudro had been badly bruised and jammed and had probably been injured internally.

The car was not damaged and none of the passengers were injured, though several were considerably shaken-up. One of the horses was so badly injured that it had to be killed.

The roadway was strewn with broken pottery and traffic was held up for some time both on the highway and the street railway line.

On Sunday morning many autoists stopped to view the wreck which was removed early this week.

Farewell Party

On Thursday evening, September 14, a farewell reception was tendered Mrs. Joseph Keith at her home at 40 Stevens street by the members of Abbott Village Lodge I.O.G.T. On behalf of the members, the Rev. Frederick A. Wilson in a few well-chosen words presented Mrs. Keith with a handsome gold brooch, centered with an amethyst. This was a token of the regard in which she is held by the Good Templars of this lodge. Mrs. Keith responded in a fitting manner.

A very enjoyable evening was spent by the company. Victrola selections were given through the evening. Solos and readings were much enjoyed. Refreshments were served at intervals during the evening. Those taking part in the entertainment were Mrs. James Fraser, Mrs. George Fyffe, Joseph Keith, Joseph Greenhow and Charles Murphy. After singing Auld Lang Syne the party broke up at midnight.

Mrs. Keith sailed on the American liner St. Louis from New York, last Saturday. She will visit her former home in Scotland.

Of Local Interest

The following clipping from a recent issue of one of the New Bedford papers is of local interest to the many friends of the young people who were the recipients. Mr. Anderson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson of High street and Mrs. Anderson was formerly Miss Ethel Gardner, daughter of Henry J. Gardner of Ballardvale.

"A surprise party was tendered Mr. and Mrs. James Anderson of Dartmouth. About 40 friends of the young couple were in attendance and presented them with a beautiful hand-painted lamp. Mr. Anderson is principal of the Dartmouth high school. He and Mrs. Anderson were married two weeks ago at his former home in Andover. Refreshments were served during the evening and an excellent musical and literary program was enjoyed. There were readings by Miss Myra Manchester and Leon Prior, superintendent of the Dartmouth schools; vocal solos by John Millington and Mrs. Leon Prior; and Miss Wathen, the recently appointed supervisor of music in the Dartmouth schools, rendered several pleasing piano selections and vocal solos."

The dinner was very bad. "Another new cook, eh?" said Mr. Dawson. "It is strange what a time we have with cooks. The Dixons have no such trouble. Dixon was telling me only yesterday that they have had the same cook for ten years."

"Yes, dear," said Mrs. Dawson sweetly, "and did he tell you who she is?"

"No. Who is she?"

"His wife."—Exchange.

South Church Notes

The Minister's Discussion Class will be led on Sunday next by M. M. Converse whose experience in factory employment problems has supplied him with a large quantity of material for the discussion of the subject which will be, "The New Harmony between Labor and Capital." This class as now conducted is an open forum for all problems of our modern life as they confront the Christian Conscience.

The fear of an outbreak of the paralysis epidemic has kept many of the Sunday School children at home and the Rally Day has been postponed until the children can get together safely.

The Men's Club is looking for a good opening on Friday, October 20, when they expect one of the political spellbinders who will be doing the State in preparation for the November election. The Andover Union of Endeavorers will gather at Ballardvale on Friday evening, September 29, at 8 o'clock for their first meeting of the season. Speaker of the evening will be Dr. James L. Hill of Salem, who has been a prime mover in the Endeavor work from the beginning.

Canoe Club Meeting

There was a well attended meeting of the Andover Canoe Club held in the clubhouse on Lupine road last Tuesday evening. The members enjoyed a social evening, after which the following committee was elected to conduct a dance in the near future: James Nicoll, chairman; John Dugan, Percy Crosby, Frank Nicoll and James Christie.

The members are urged to attend another social Tuesday next.

Governor McCall Honors Brookline Girl

One of Governor McCall's recent appointments was that of Special Commissioner conferred upon Elizabeth A. Joyce of Brookline, with offices in the Colonial Building, Boston. Miss Joyce, who is widely known for her stenographic activities in political, social and theatrical circles is one of the few women in the State to be invested with this power. Under the statute rulings Miss Joyce is empowered to take depositions and affidavits, administer oaths, issue summons to witnesses, take acknowledgments of deeds or conveyances of lands, tenements and hereditaments and other instruments.

Three Hundred Million Red Cross Seals to be Distributed

Three hundred million Red Cross Christmas Seals are being printed in Cincinnati for the annual holiday campaign to be conducted under the joint auspices of the American Red Cross and The National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The campaign for the sale of Red Cross Seals this year will be larger than ever before. Although in 1915 the sale reached the record total of 80,000,000 seals, bringing in $800,000, it is expected that this year at least 100,000,000 seals or $1,000,000 worth will be sold. The sale will be organized from Alaska to the Canal Zone and from Hawaii to Porto Rico. Every state and territory in the United States will have seals on sale. New organizations will be working in a number of the western states, including Montana, Utah and Wyoming. Distribution of the seals is now under way.

The Red Cross Christmas Seal for 1916 was designed by T. M. Cleland of New York City. It shows a Santa Claus in red on a green background in the center panel with a path on his back bearing a red cross. The lettering "A Merry Christmas" and "A Happy New Year" is carried vertically up and down the sides of the seal, while the date and the words "American Red Cross" are across the bottom of the seal. The poster effect given by this seal is very striking and makes an unusually handsome design.

The Massachusetts Anti-Tuberculosis League, 8 Joy street, Boston, has been appointed the State Agent for the sale of the Red Cross Seals in Massachusetts. Already plans are being made for a vigorous campaign throughout the State.

Right or Wrong Number?

The right way to call a telephone number is to consult the telephone directory, get the correct number, and then call for that number, clearly and distinctly, when the operator answers your signal. If you do not ask for the correct number you will be connected with the wrong number.

Have you ever noticed how the mind plays queer pranks with numbers in transposing figures? It will readily transpose 1468 into 1648, or 6426 into 6246.

If memory only is relied upon, there is always a likelihood of error, and valuable time is lost in correcting such errors.

If an old memorandum containing a number is used, there may have been a change since it was written or printed, therefore the telephone directory should be consulted whenever you wish to talk.

There can be no time saved by guessing—"nears" don't count; every wrong number call is an economic waste to the subscriber as well as to the company.

The wrong way creates annoyance to the person who is called by mistake; the right way saves delay and annoyance in completing your message, and it creates a high grade of service for you and for others.

If you cannot find the name in the telephone directory, ask for the "Information Operator" at the desired Central office. Her records are complete and up to the minute; she knows every new subscriber's number, every change of location as well as of number, and will start you right with the desired information.

Whaling and Thrift

We are not advising young men to go whaling. That is an industry that has about passed out. But it is interesting to consider the training in thrift which was inculcated in the whaler. William W. Crapo told us the other day of once settling a voyage with a youth who came from a farm and shipped as a green hand. The youth was gone five years and in the course of the voyage became third mate. It was a very profitable venture and on his return Mr. Crapo, who settled the voyage, paid over to the young man, in a lump, the sum of two thousand dollars. Now that is not a great sum for five years' work, but paid over in the aggregate it seemed large. Years after, when Mr. Crapo was presiding over a meeting of the directors of the Flint & Pere Marquette Railroad, he was addressed by a prosperous stockholder, who introduced himself as the man with whom Mr. Crapo settled the voyage. He invested the money in another whaler, went more voyages, accumulated considerable money, went West, made a fortune, was president of a bank and a man of affairs.

The whaler, from the captain to the green hand, was economical by force of circumstances. There were no ways of spending money at sea. The owner paid over allowances to the families of the officers while the vessels were on a cruise, that just about sufficed to pay living expenses. Then at the end of four years, if a voyage had been profitable, the men received very substantial amounts, partly the result of their enforced economies. The tendency was for the man with several thousand dollars in his pocket to buy a piece of a ship, which was the popular investment of the times, hereabouts. In any other occupation the earner ashore would be tempted to spend his money as he received it, proportionally to the amount of his compensation. It was this method of payment which resulted in making so many New Bedford men, in the old days, men of means, so that at the period to which we refer New Bedford was the wealthiest city in the United States in proportion to its population. This was a tribute to thrift, rather than to an especially profitable industry, and while the old occupation and its methods are past, the principle husbandry still leads on to fortune.—New Bedford Mercury.

Honeysuckle is from Japan

Years ago Japan sent to this country a vigorous green vine which won favor through its lavish display of fragrant white flowers in late spring. For a time the vine and flowers were kept within the bounds of gardens, lawns and parks. Then it ran away. Today you'll find it roaming along the roadside, climbing stumps and hedges. It needs no gardener for it can take care of itself. It is the honeysuckle.

The Japanese variety which ran away joined some of its American cousins, who are just as pretty and just as fragrant. There's the coral honeysuckle, for example—a famous porch climber in the Southern States, with trumpet shaped flowers, red outside and scarlet within—a cream colored fragrant relative of the honeysuckle.

Recently there came a new variety from China, where it was found on the tops of mountains 6000 feet above the sea. Its foliage is almost evergreen, and the flowers are a reddish bronze. Another variety has red flowers, with yellow and buff markings.

There's no need to hunt for honeysuckle. Its fragrance will announce it before you're near enough to see it.—Philadelphia North American.

Simply "Two for Five"

"Two for five," bawled the peddler. Though he was shabbily dressed he had a professional and remote expression on his countenance. He wore a beard and gold-rimmed glasses. Perhaps it is an exaggeration to say he bawled.

"Two for five,"
A tray hung before him, suspended by a strap from his neck. On it were envelopes, all sealed.

Slowly a crowd gathered about him. There were a messenger boy, a pompous old gentleman who might have been a magnate, two stenographers, pert beneath a deposit of rouge; three laborers and several mere young men.

The peddler surveyed the crowd at his leisure. The crowd gazed at the envelopes.

"Two for five," said the peddler. A stout old lady elbowed her way through the crowd, dragging her reticule behind her.

"Here," she said, holding out a nickel. "I'll take two."

"Thank you," said the peddler, removing his beard, "that's all for today. You needn't pay me madam. There is nothing in the envelopes. I'm a professor of psychology, and I bet a colleague that I could sell someone in a crowd two for five. Thanks to you, I've won. Good morning."

The professor divested himself of the tray and departed.—New York Sun

SOCCER

Andover United Defeats Manchester Team, 3 Goals to 1

Andover United defeated the Amoskeag team of Manchester last Saturday afternoon on the cricket field, 3 goals to 1. There were but a handful of spectators present to witness a good game. The weather was ideal. Andover had a better team on the field than the one that opposed Methuen last week. The return of Low to right fullback set the defense back to their right places. Low played a rattling game throughout and was brilliant during the early part of the second half when the visitors were most aggressive. The halfback line was up to standard in this game, all three showing brightly at times. Ramsey made a great addition to the forward line and worked well with Dougherty. Spence did well at centre. Right wing is the weak spot in the United lineup.

The Manchester team had some splendid players on the field. Stewart played a great game at left back. Rishton, the famous back, was at right half for the Textile eleven. The visitors' brightest stars were the McAllister brothers, Wesley and William, the center forward being strong and fast.

While the Andover team deserved their victory, there was not a great deal of difference between the teams. Both sides played the same game and there were many pretty touches.

Amoskeag made the trip in a motor truck and were late in arriving. Andover kicked off and Dougherty soon shot but was high. From the goal kick Wesley McAllister got by the backs but Black had his eye on him and reached it in time to kick to touch. Ramsey sent over the first of many perfect crosses and Swindells fisted out. Stewart kicked away the ball twice in rapid succession. Turnor sent his forwards away but William McAllister shot high. Paterson sent in a long cross which Kershaw picked up. The visitors kept the ball at the home end and William had a beautiful shot which Kershaw cleared for a corner. Andover sent on their way when a foul stopped the goal. Dougherty got hold of it. McEwan stepped in and Dougherty and Spence had a misunderstanding, but McEwan failed to get the ball away and Dougherty shot past the waiting Swindells.

The visitors centered and started to force the game. Downs tipped the ball badly but Kershaw got it, then let the ball go in for a corner. This proved fruitless but Manchester persisted. Finally Rennie got the ball away and drove far down to Ramsey; the winger got past Rishton and McEwan and shot a terrific drive at the goal. The ball struck the foot of the post and rebounded to the line where the winger got it and placed over his head to the goal mouth. At the other end William McAllister again shot but was too high.

Both teams took turns at attacking but no goals resulted, although Andover lost what looked like one by an offside decision. Halftime: Andover 1, Amoskeag 0.

On resuming, first the home left then the right wings got down. Stewart stopped the first advance but Spence shot past on the next. Away went Albert McAllister and Murray, but Low came nicely between them and carried the ball away.

Andover's second goal, the best of the match, came from a strong shot by Ramsey. Downs, finding the winger well placed, dropped the ball past McEwan and in a second Ramsey was on it and running away from the big back. Down on the goal he went and parted with a shot which Swindells stopped, but the force was so great the ball bounded into the goal.

The visitors pressed now and William McAllister struck the bar with a rising shot after a throw-in. A moment later the visitors got their goal when Wesley McAllister shot from twenty yards. The ball shot along the ground and glanced off Downs who was stretched on the turf; it was deflected just enough to be out of Kershaw's reach.

Manchester were now playing a bustling game and kept the home defense busy. Finally Andover settled down and got away for a corner. Coleman placed the goal mouth but Swindells picked up. Andover returned fast now and Dougherty tipped the ball past the keeper and was about to shoot when Swindells attempted to hold him. A penalty was given and Black scored easily, which ended the scoring. The summary:

Andover—Kershaw; Low, Downs; Coleman, Rennie, Black; Skea, Carnathan, Spence, Dougherty, Ramsey.

Amoskeag—Swindells; Stewart, McEwan; Gifford, Turnor, Rishton; A. McAllister, Murray, W. McAllister, Wesley McAllister, Paterson.

Score: Andover 3, Amoskeag 1. Goals: Dougherty, Ramsey, Black (penalty), Wesley McAllister. Referee: F. Houghton. Linesmen: Banks and Anderson. Time: 45-minute halves.

Andover United will play Lawrence at Glen Essex tomorrow afternoon. Andover has still further strengthened its lineup and expects to score another victory this week. These players will make the trip: Munroe, Kershaw, Low, Downs, Coleman, Rennie, Black, Kildaway, Skea, Porter, Dougherty, Spence, Carnathan, and Ramsey.

Finance in China

Shanghai is only 120 miles from Hangchow, for instance, and some of the strongest banks in the world are in the former city; but the railway station and telegraph office of Hangchow will soon be your Shanghai money, and you must get it exchanged at the brokers for Hangchow bills, at two or three per cent discount. It would seem that hard silver cash would be good anywhere, but Mexican dollars, the usual medium of exchange—except where the late Yuan Shi Kai impressed his visage on certain silver pieces—are worth different sums in different places.

Moreover, there is "big money" and "little money." A silver dollar is "big money," and in Peking you can get 136 large copper cents for it, though it is nominally worth 100 cents; while a ten-cent piece, the size of our dime, is "little money," and you can get only eleven coppers for it. The difference between big and little money varies in every province. When you come to make purchases, you pay "little money" for some things, and "big money" for others; and it is enough to give one incipient nervous prostration to find out whether or not he has the right change.—Christian Herald.

Electrical Trade and the War

The Electrical World reviews the more important economic changes that took place in the first two years of the European war within the electrical trade. Electrical manufacturers in the first half of 1914 found but a listless market and were not inclined to force buying by offering inducements. From the time war was declared in Europe until the end of the year 1914 there was a general depression of all business. The volume of electrical business in 1914 was 15 per cent less than during the preceding twelve months. With the opening of the year 1915, there was a change for the better and by September the developments of the seller's markets in the electrical trade were pretty well defined. Each day gave added evidence of the return of prosperity and by the first of January, 1916, the electrical manufacturer was swamped with business. In this condition he still remains. Prices began to advance about November last and since then there has been a gradual advance all along the line. Very little of this is to be attributed to the law of supply and demand, because the natural tendency in the electrical trade is for stability of price. The advance in practically every case has been occasioned by the higher cost of production. Labor has gone up 25 per cent in the electrical field, raw material has cost in some cases many hundred per cent more, but on the average about 35 to 40 per cent. Copper rose from the normal price of about 14 cents per pound to 31 cents. So great has been the demand for absolutely necessary material, however, that the electrical factories are now working night and day.

Welded by Electricity

The most intense heat produced by man is that of the electric arc, and the possibilities of its application in various branches of American industry have only begun to be realized. Aside from lighting the most useful purpose to which the electric arc has been put is in the mending of broken or cracked castings and metal parts of all kinds. A broken shaft, for instance, can be resurfaced from the junk heap if a skilled workman with adequate arc apparatus, is given a chance at it. Moreover, a broken metal piece repaired by the electric arc is as serviceable as when new. In fact, strain tests made upon repaired castings often result in breakage at a different point than where the repair was made. Operators are well protected against danger. Due to the intense heat at the point at which the carbon pours its electrical fire upon the metal, the operators usually wear helmets, not unlike the gas helmets of the present war. They at least hold between their eyes and the arc a thick plate of cobalt glass. The amount of protection required depends upon the strength of the current fed to the arc.—Popular Science Weekly.

Smuggling in Holland

Smuggling has increased recently in Holland to such an extent as again to become a public scandal. Here are a few examples taken from various Dutch newspapers recently:

"At Venlo the people come to watch smuggling much as they would go to look at a display of fireworks. Those who go first as spectators are quickly infected by the example of the smugglers and fall into the same evil courses. The trade is lucrative and the work is not hard. All that it is necessary to do is to buy a certain number of parcels of fat and a voluminous cape and go walking of an evening along the frontier, a harmless and innocent pastime. Then all at once you let a parcel fall and kick it by accident over the frontier, as if you were kicking a stone off the path. It is immediately picked up on the other side, and if you do this often enough you can make quite a nice profit.

"At Bergen-op-Zoom parties of ten to twenty-five men are to be seen in the evening going towards the woods and fields laden with margarine, oil, rubber, saccharin and all sorts of forbidden articles, including pepper. This last, by the way, has become very dear in Germany, a pound costing about $17.50. It is supposed that pepper is used in the manufacture of tear-producing bombs. A report in one of the Dutch newspapers states that three persons were arrested in a little wood between Waubach and Brunsum the other day. They were smuggling pepper in pigs' bladders.

"The military officials, as well as the Government and municipal police, are said to be doing everything they can at Bergen-op-Zoom to restrict the abuse, but in vain. The professional smugglers, now increased by hundreds who were formerly respectable working-class people, are too active and too artful to be caught. The system adopted seems to be that each smuggler is paid so much for carrying about two pounds of the article to be smuggled, and for doing so earns about $5 a night. The punishment in the event of detection is only a few days' imprisonment."

BRITISH APOLOGIZES

Washington, Sept. 21.—Great Britain formally expressed to the United States regret for the action of a British destroyer in holding up and examining the Philippine steamer Cebu within the territorial waters of the Philippines.

Because of a heavy fog, it was explained, the destroyer's commander did not know the vessel was so near shore. Department officials say the incident is regarded as closed.

The Cebu was boarded and examined a mile and a half off the island of Carabao recently, the boarding party apparently being in search of a German who was not found. Governor-General Harrison of the Philippines heard the case, denouncing the action as a violation of American neutrality, and a protest was made to London immediately.

In the explanation the British government declared that "when the Cebu was boarded the land was hidden, but as soon as the weather cleared and it was found that the ship was within territorial waters, the boarding officers were recalled, and that the passenger list was examined, but the ship was not searched."

DEATH OF GENERAL MILLS

Noted Army Man Ill From Pneumonia but Fifteen Hours

Washington, Sept. 19.—Major General Albert L. Mills, chief of the bureau of militia affairs, holder of the army medal for bravery under fire, builder of the new West Point, and former president of the army war college, died here after fifteen hours' illness from pneumonia.

In a laudatory statement expressing the sentiment of the war department, Secretary Baker declared Mills' devotion to his work took strength with which he might otherwise have been able to resist the sudden illness.

Mills was born in New York city, May 7, 1854. Rapid promotion and high honors came to him as a result of his brilliant service.

OBITUARIES

MRS. ANNE JACKSON

Mrs. Anne Jackson, widow of the late Frank Jackson, passed away on Thursday morning at the home of her daughter, Mrs. M. W. Colquhoun, after a long illness, at the age of 72 years and 6 months.

Mrs. Jackson was born in England but came to North Andover thirty-three years ago, and has made her residence in Andover for the last five years. She was a woman of fine character and her cheerful courage during a long and tedious illness was an inspiration to her family and friends. Her days were filled with service for others and her passing was the peaceful ending of a well-spent life. She had the devoted care of a loving daughter and son-in-law with whom she has always made her home. She leaves also one grandson, Gordon Lee Colquhoun.

Funeral services will be held at her late residence, 38 Washington avenue, at 2 o'clock, Saturday afternoon. Interment will be at Glenwood Cemetery, Everett. Friends are cordially invited to the service.

MRS. MARGARET MULLIGAN

After an illness of several months duration, Mrs. Margaret Mulligan passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Henry Donaldson, 83 Summer street, on Wednesday. The deceased has resided in Andover for many years and although her health did not permit her to go about much, her kindly and affectionate disposition made for her many firm friends. She is survived by four sons and three daughters.

The remains were taken to Bennington, Vt., today for interment.

MRS. CAROLINE HATCH

Mrs. Caroline Hatch, aged fifty-nine years, died at the family home, 10 Central street, last Tuesday morning, after a long illness.

The funeral was held at the late home Thursday afternoon at two o'clock. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. William E. Lombard, pastor of the Baptist church. Interment was in the family lot in Spring Grove cemetery.

Another Victim of the Sea

Admiral Dewey, discussing the naval battle of Skager Rack, said at a Washington luncheon:

"A naval officer, to succeed, must be very quick-witted and resourceful. In fact, he must be like Hamilton Footlites. 'Ham Footlites' leaned on the rail of his seagoing yacht soliloquizing about love while the blue waves rolled and heaved splendidly, each blue wave being a super under a roll of canvas."

"But the waves were here and there threadbare, and suddenly a wave ripped and a head bobbed up in the midst of the heaving sea, and stared around in bewildered fashion."

"Ham Footlites silenced the audience's titters with one stern glance. 'Man overboard!' he yelled in stentorian tones."

"Then the super, managing to draw back his head through the hole in the wave, disappeared. Ham Footlites heaved a stormy sigh."

"Another victim seized by the relentless sea, alas! he said."—Louisville Journal.

Admired the Moons

After much persuasion, Old Bilkins had signed the pledge. The curate was particularly pleased to think that he had succeeded in turning the notorious old toper from the error of his ways.

But judge the of curate's horror when one pleasant evening he overtook Bilkins walking along the village street in a distinctly shaky manner.

"Bilkins," said he, in a voice of stern sadness, "I hope you haven't broken your pledge of abstinence?"

"Me, sir? Oh no, sir!" replied Bilkins hoarsely. "Tis the rheumatism in me legs."

"Ah, I'm glad to hear that you have remained true to your promise," sighed the curate. "Well, good-night, my man. It's a lovely evening."

"It is that, sir," said Bilkins fervently. "And there's some splendid moons up in the sky."—Louisville Courier Journal

School of Apple Grading and Packing

Apple growers in this vicinity will be interested in the School of Apple Grading and Packing which is to be conducted at Amherst by the Extension Service of the Massachusetts Agricultural College, October 3 to 7, inclusive. The school will be under the personal direction of Prof. W. W. Chenoweth of the Pomology Department of the College. The first day of the school will be devoted to explanation and demonstration of the requirements of the new apple grading law, under the direction of Wilfrid Wheeler, Secretary of the State Board of Agriculture. On each of the following days, personal instruction in grading and packing will be given. Each student will perform the various operations until he becomes proficient in each step. The practice work will be supplemented by special lectures and demonstrations on selection of orchard sites and the various operations in the planting and management of the orchard. The registration fee for the school is three dollars and the number of students is limited to 30. Those interested should apply at once and in order to insure acceptance the enrollment fee should accompany their applications. Dr. Hurd, Supervisor of Short Courses, M. A. C., Amherst, Mass. A descriptive circular with the program of the school will be sent on request.

SCHOOLS OPEN MONDAY

of the large enrollment expected. If all who signified their intention of entering last June appear, the number of students will exceed 240. Big Game for Haverhill

One of the really big college gridiron contests for 1916 will be staged outside of a college town this fall. Dartmouth and Georgetown will line up in the New High School Stadium at Haverhill on Saturday, October 21, and already there is such a keen interest in the game that mail applications are being received by the chairman of the ticket committee, Frank D. Babcock, at the Haverhill Chamber of Commerce.

It will be the only time that the New Hampshire eleven will play anywhere near Boston this fall and the only game that Georgetown University plays in the North. On paper, both teams are evenly matched, as in the past few years Georgetown has been showing unheard-of strength on the gridiron and has developed a number of stars, among them John Gilroy of Haverhill, who Walter Camp says is one of the best halfbacks and good enough for the All-Southern eleven picked by the past master of them all.

Georgetown and Dartmouth alumni are much interested in the game but the interest extends also to a much wider circle as there are thousands of people hereabouts who have never seen a big college game and who will be glad of the chance to obtain good seats for one. Seats are being handled on the first come first served basis, some of the best men in Haverhill being in charge of the proposition. Mayor Bartlett himself has signed the guarantee for the teams and scores of artisans are busily engaged getting the seats in readiness to accommodate 15,000 people. The prices of the seats are $2 and $1.50, and it is expected that most of them will be sold through the mail it is an early bird who will secure the preferred locations.

Application blanks may be secured at the following places: Stacey's Drug Store, Crowley's Drug Store, Burns's Furnishing Store, O. P. Chase's, H. F. Chase's and the Andover Bookstore.

The United States Public Health Service Asks Do You

Maintain a polluted well and then complain about the undertaker's bill? Think screening is too expensive and then

Blame your malaria on the climate? Insist on sanitary cigar factories and then Use a public cigar cutter? Carry a fine handkerchief and then forget to cover your mouth when you cough?

Do You Know That

One million two hundred thousand Americans die each year, it is estimated? Heart disease, pneumonia and tuberculosis cause more than 30 per cent of deaths?

Sickness lowers earning capacity? The U. S. Public Health Service is the nation's first line of defense against disease?

Disease is the nation's greatest burden? Sunlight and sanitation, not silks and satins, make better babies?
